DRAIN BLIZZARD POND, IS REPORT TO COUNTY COURT

Viewers Think Plan Would Benefit County by Thousands of Acres.

Land Reclaimed and Miasma
Swamp Removed.

WHAT DRAINAGE WOULD COST

That "Blizzard Pond" can be drained and made valuable property and the surrounding country benefited from a standpoint of health, is the opinion of the board of viewers and the county engineer, appointed by the fiscal court to investigate the matter and report to the court.

The report has been completed and will be presented to the court at its October sitting. The estimated cost of the ditch needed to drain the pond is $4,000, which is to be divided among the individual property owners according to the benefits it is estimated they would derive.

According to the plans and profile prepared by James Wilcox, county engineer, the ditch would begin at the intersection of Island Creek and the Husbands road, where the creek leaves its regular channel and spreads over the adjacent territory. The ditch is to run due east 4,000 feet, thence north 57 degrees, east 7,700 feet, to Clark's river. The ditch is to be 10 feet wide at the bottom and fall 3 inches to the foot.

The largest property owners affected are W. L. Bauer, who owns 1011 acres, and the Realty Development company, which owns 978 acres. These are assessed $1 per acre and other property owners are assessed amounts ranging from 85 to 50 cents per acre, on the amount of land they own. It is estimated that the drainage would be assessed $400 of the amount required to dig the ditch.

John D. Craig, O. W. Rawlinson and R. E. Parrish, the viewers, concur in the report of Mr. Wilcox, the engineer.

In Circuit Court.

Injunction suit to restrain Young Taylor from fencing eight feet of ground alongside his property at Fifth and Trimble street, was filed in circuit court this morning by Mrs. Sorena St. John. The plaintiff alleges that in 1885 she sold the defendant a lot adjoining her property, and that the party drawing the deed made a mistake and included 8 feet more of ground than was intended and agreed upon when the sale was made. She states that the property never passed into the possession of the defendant and that she did not know he claimed it until recently when he attempted to build a fence on what he claims was the dividing line. The injunction will be argued before Judge Reed September 12.

CULLEYS WIN AT MAXON MILLS

By good playing the Chess, Checker & Whist club won from the Knights of Columbus team yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 5. The Knights were short several players and had a weak outer garden, while the C. C. & W. team was strengthened in several spots. The game opened with a start that made the spectators look up, but the pace slowed down, although the game was interesting.

In the first inning Donovan hit the first ball tossed for a Texas leaguer, while Trantham laid down a pretty bunt, and Donovan was advanced to third sack. McKenzie hit to Hassman and Donovan scored. Wurth hit to Fisher, but made first on an error of Wright. Planagan hit to Bagby, and McKenzie scored. For the C. C. & W.'s Sights hit to right field for a single. Fisher hit a high one to left, and Sights scored. The game continued about even until the sixth inning, when the Knights went up and the Chess team shoved over a bunch of men.

Wurth and Hassman pitched good games, but Hassman received better support than his rival. Puryear with a gof poof v pip psum pue oao: sng and it was death to a player that attempted to steal. Several new faces were on the C. C. & W. team.

Elks Tie.

In a good game between the Princeton Elks and the Paducah Elks the score was a tie, 7 to 7. Both teams tried hard, but no more runs were permitted to cross the pan. The game was called in the seventh inning. Sutton twirled good ball, while Stevens for Princeton was pitching hot ones. Robertson knocked a home run in the fourth round. The Princeton Elks will come to Paducah and the tie will be played off. The Paducah Elks lined up: Goodman, c; Sutton, p; Lloyd, 1b; Barringer, 2b; Williams, 3b; Robertson, ss; Wolff, lf; Prather, cf; and Head, rf.

Owing to the rough diamond many errors were made by both teams. In the batting line Robertson was the star as he secured three hits; Lloyd, Goodman, Wolff, and Williams copped two safeties, and Barringer, Head and Prather were content with one each.

DOUBLE CRIME

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE AND THEN KILLS HIMSELF.

Deed Committed in Presence of Little Daughter, Who Told Story of Parents' Death.

Benton, Ky., Sept. 8. (Special.)—Benton was shocked in her celebration of Labor Day by a horrible double crime in which Mrs. Malinda Heitt was killed by her husband, C. H. Heitt, who also turned his gun upon himself. After a narrow escape the ten-year-old daughter of Mrs. Heitt escaped with a wound. Jealousy was the cause that prompted the deed, as Heitt and his wife had not lived together for some time. The deed was committed on the Mayfield road near Benton.

Both were preparing to go to Benton to consult attorneys about a legal separation when Heitt was inflamed by jealousy and the crime was committed. The little girl told the story of the shooting, which was partly verified by a short story of Mrs. Heitt before she died. The couple was at the home of Mrs. Heitt when a quarrel arose. Heitt said he would kill his wife, and before she could escape he began firing. The woman fell to the floor, and when the little girl ran out the gate Heitt fired a shot at her. Heitt went to a ravine and killed himself instantly with a bullet in his brain. Mrs. Heitt lived until 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but she was only conscious at times.

Heitt was 72 years old, and was a native of Marshall county, where he was well known. He had been married twice, but had no children by either marriage. A note was found in his pocket that indicated the murder had been long contemplated. His victim, Mrs. Heitt, had been married twice. Her first husband was named Chandler, and they had two children. Her maiden name was Melinda Thompson, and she was born and reared in Calloway county. The funeral and burial of the victims of the crime was held today.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS IN BLOODY FIGHT

Billy Papke Wins Championship From Ketchell.

Fought Many Rounds With Eyes Closed—Referee Refused to Stop Inhuman Affair.

FOUNDED ALMOST TO DEATH

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 8.—Stanley Ketchell, of Michigan, former middleweight champion of the world, was knocked out in the twelfth round by Billy Papke, of Illinois, who is now middleweight champion of the world. Both men entered the ring in apparently perfect condition and neither had ever been knocked out. Ketchell had the decision over Papke in a previous ten round bout. When Papke entered he walked to Ketchell's corner and greeted him with a handshake, but when time was called and Ketchell walked to the center extending his hand for the shake, Papke ignored the hand and sailed into the Michigan man with fiery impetuosity. The fight was practically over in a minute and twenty seconds after the gong sounded.

Became Question of Time.

From that time on it was merely a question of how long Ketchell would last. Papke tore into Ketchell with such fury that the undefeated champion was simply lifted off his feet four times within the next minute. Papke knocked Ketchell to the mat for the count and from the first knock down Ketchell never really recovered his form. He was a defeated man, dazed, bleeding and struggling from twenty blows in the face and yet he came back and stayed with terrible determination, and for at least three rounds held his own with the victorious challenger.

When Ketchell stepped to his corner for the second round it was seen that his right eye was closed. At the next intermission his seconds lanced the eye and sucked the blood, but Ketchell never regained the sight of his right eye. Before the finish the other eye was all but closed and for the last three rounds like a drunken man, practically he staggered about the ring dizzily blinded. In the third Ketchell showed his best form when he forced Papke through the ropes.

In Pitiable Condition.

Te gong saved Ketchell just as he was knocked through the ropes in the eleventh. Another minute finished him, with Papke almost as strong as when he entered the ring. Ketchell was carried to a dressing room. Both eyes were swollen into great black puffs, and completely closed. His lips were cut and swollen to several times their normal size. Papke was surrounded by his friends and his seconds, who hugged him with delight over his victory.

23 Rounds to Draw.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Abe Attell champion featherweight of America, and Owen Moran, England's premier boxer of the same division, fought a draw. The battle

A Pioneer Laundry Solicitor.

The above out will be very readily recognized as that of Jno. B. Mills, with his horse and wagon, as solicitor of the Star Steam Laundry. There is perhaps no more familiar face upon the streets of Paducah than that of Jno. Mills. Seventeen years Sept. 8th he accepted a position with the Star Laundry as solicitor, and since that time he has been continuously soliciting and delivering laundry for the same firm. The Star Laundry was then in its infancy, located at 101 Broadway, but now at 127 North Fourth Street, and requires three wagons to handle their business. At that time only one wagon was used and Mr. Mills covered the entire city. He has the record of having collected and delivered more laundry than any one man in the city of Paducah. He points with pride to the fact that a large number of his customers have been with him since his first week on the wagon, a fact that speaks well, not only for his promptness and courtesy, but also for the high grade work turned out by the Star Laundry.

In beginning his eighteenth year he desires to thank his many customers for their patronage and also wishes to say if there are others who want to have first class laundry work delivered them by the oldest solicitor in the city, phone 290 and he will be pleased to do the rest.

lasted twenty-three rounds and at its conclusion Referee Welch unhesitatingly declared the fight a draw. The fight on the whole, was rather tame, but this was offset by the cleverness of both fighters. It was a very even one and was marked by Moran's aggressiveness and Attell's cleverness in blocking and his all-round work from a defensive standpoint. The consensus of opinion seemed to indicate, however, that the Californian did not show his best form of former contests, and that he lacks the dazzling speed which has made him a marvel of cleverness.

A resume of the fight by rounds shows that Attell had a more or less advantage in nine rounds, Moran was given 11x, and the balance shows even honors. In the first few rounds some swift work was done, the fighters at times slugging each other viciously. From the twelfth to the nineteenth they seemed to slow down, but in the latter Attell gave his opponent considerable punishment, repeating the dose in the twentieth. Moran did some effective work in the twenty-first. The twenty-second was a hard one but even. In the twenty-third they both went at each other at a swift pace and fought with honors about even until the gong ended the fight.

LOUISVILLE POLL SHOWS REPUBLICANS

Managers of Campaign Pleased in Fifth District.

Cantrill's Nomination in Seventh Unpopular Among His Own Party.

LAW AND ORDER IN SECOND.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 8.—The Republican managers in Louisville are highly elated over the poll of the city that has just been completed by the local Republican campaign committee. Although nothing positive can be ascertained from such a poll, the whole drift goes to show that the policies of Mayor Grinstead meet with the approval of the electorate. Mr. R. C. Kinkadee will pitch his campaign upon national issues, and upon the work of the Grinstead administration.

The forecast in the poll is for a registration of something like 52,000, divided as follows: Democrats, 24,500; Republicans, 19,000; Independents, 8,000. This will show a decided plurality for the combined Republican and Independent vote over the Democratic vote, and as this has only occurred once in recent years, and that time the Republicans carried the city by a heavy majority, the Republicans feel good, particularly as hundreds of men, while stating that they intended to register as Democrats, stated "We will not vote for Bryan."

Figures based on the poll are purely in the nature of estimates, but the Republicans now believe that Taft will get fully 6,000 in Louisville, and Kinkadee fully 4,500.

Dissatisfied With Cantrill.

Carlisle, Ky., Sept. 8.—In the last few days the eyes of the state have been on the political happenings of the Ashland district, and the interest in the events of and leading up to the congressional convention recently held in Lexington has been intense all over this section.

That the action of the convention has not been pleasing to many Democrats of the district is evident, and whether Mr. L. P. Johnson, who was nominated by the delegates who withdrew from the regular convention hall, continues in the race or not, there is every evidence of a dissatisfied feeling among the Democrats of that district which will, in all probability, cost the nominees of the party many votes. It is the belief of the friends and supporters of the Hon. L. L. Bristow, of Georgetown, who has been nominated by the Republicans of the Seventh district for congress, that they have, in the split of the Democratic party, a chance to greatly decrease the Democratic majority to such an extent, perhaps, as will preclude the possibility of carrying the state for Bryan and Kern.

In 1894 the Democratic nominee for congress only received a majority of about 200 in the Seventh, in the face of the fact that it usually rolls up a majority of from 4,000 to 7,000, and unless there is much more "harmony" injected into the ranks of the Democracy of that district than has been displayed within the last week or ten days, there seems to be no doubt that the district will not give even the majority of 5,000 given some time ago, in an estimate made by the Evening Post. The Democrats of that district certainly have a hard work ahead of them to maintain their record majority of the last few campaigns, in as much as it is believed that there are numbers of Democrats in many of the counties of the district who will fail to give enthusiastic support to the nominee of the Lexington convention, and such a condition would, in all probability, affect considerably the national ticket.

It goes without saying that the Republicans are much interested in the developments in the political situation, and up to the present time are highly pleased with the outlook, their prospects being much better than they anticipated weeks ago.

Law and Order in Second. Henderson, Ky., Sept. 8.—Mr. Worsham, Republican nominee for congress in the Second congressional district, announces that he will fight the devil with fire and base his campaign against Congressman A. O. Stanley on the tobacco organization of which Mr. Stanley claims to be the patron saint. Mr. Worsham believes that the participations of Mr. Stanley in tobacco affairs in this vicinity have him with the very growers whose champion he claims to be, because the members will hold him responsible for his inflammatory speeches, which have been followed by outrages.

In an interview Saturday night Mr.

Worsham said: "I am going to launch my campaign upon the law and order issue. Stanley has made inflammatory speeches and I believe the people of this district will hold him responsible for his utterances. The majority of the voters in this congressional district are not in sympathy with night riding. The farmers are entitled to, and should organize for their own protection, but they, as all other citizens, need the protection of, and must obey the law. Franks struck the keynote of this campaign in his Hopkinsville speech, it is up to the voters to say whether they want law and order or not, and I am willing to trust my chances to their judgment. Just wait and see what the 'silent vote' does to Stanley."

How do you expect to overcome Stanley's large majority of 1906?" Mr. Worsham was asked.

"What did Willson do to that majority of 1906?" was the counter question. "He left only 1,403 of it, and conditions have changed even since then. When he made his race in 1906 Stanley's majority was due largely to his popularity, for at that time he had not made his Hopkinsville speech in the dark tobacco district and there had been no raids where he had spoken previously. Also there was somewhat of disaffection, really a split, in the Republican ranks." Mr. Worsham then expressed a belief that he could detract from Stanley's strength by showing that a great deal of lawlessness in some of the tobacco districts had been due to the inflammatory utterances of the Democratic congressman.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Democrats regard his candidacy as a joke, Mr. Worsham will begin an aggressive campaign about September 18, speaking probably first at Hawesville, Hancock county. He will stay in the field from that date until he has made a thorough canvass of the district, and expresses a willingness to meet Stanley on the stump at any time and place.

The campaign is sure to become one of the warmest ever seen in this district.

FEAR OF SNAKES.

Declared to Be Greater Among Men Than Among Women.

The physician who allowed himself to be bitten by a rattlesnake to demonstrate that the poison of that species of the ophidian race is a sure cure for insanity, didn't survive to complete the proof.

On Sunday a few pathologists succeeded in coaxing from a South American viper enough of his poison to furnish fifty years' supply of antivenom.

One snake in the same square mile with me is entirely too many.

It is a matter of fact that men have greater fear of snakes than women. During a visit to friends in the country, I was crossing a stretch of meadow in the company of my hostess' daughter, a sprightly girl of 17, when a black snake crossed the path ten feet in front of us. I caught my companion by the sleeve but she wrenched herself loose, gathered her skirts above her knees, gave a running jump and landed squarely upon the back of the reptile. His snakeship thrashed the grass and the girl's ankles with equal facility. As soon as she could disentangle one foot she planted it upon the serpent's head. In the absence of club or stones, I was compelled to stand and witness a scene that to me was terrifying. Out to the girl furnished supreme enjoyment.

Years afterward, when I read Haggard's description of Jess' fight with the kangaroo, I understood the kind of entertainment that my young companion had provided for me.

It is to be hoped that the pathologists have Oslerized this "sure death" snake. If it ever gets out of its big box at the Zoo, I shall ask contributions upon which to put the ocean between us.

One snake like that might secrete itself in a tenement house and kill half its population before anybody identified the character of the supposed epidemic of death.—Julia Chambers, in the Brooklyn Eagle.

The Red Nose.

According to the Medical Press and Circular of London, a red nose is by no means a sign of drunkenness and is as common among teetotalers as tipplers. Indigestion is responsible for red noses, while excessive tea drinking is apt to play havoc with the complexion in general and with the nose in particular. Sometimes the congested nose is a sign of some serious disorder of the heart, or it may point to a sluggish circulation. The habit of inhaling cigarette smoke and puffing it through the nostrils may contribute to the external wealth of color.

Daily Thought.
 The keenest condemnation of impurity is the silent pure life.

Do you feel like working today?
 If Paducah expects to receive credit for her actual growth during the decade of 1909 to 1919, the city limits must be extended westward to include territory built up and deserving incorporation.

Why not organize the "city beautiful" movement by blocks and aid the health department by seeing that weeds are cut and unsanitary conditions remedied in your own neighborhood?

FEDERAL APPROPRIATIONS.

With a half dozen employees added to the local postoffice force, giving the city better mail service, an appropriation for the completion of the custom house and the advantage of a sub-station in Mechanicsburg, people of Paducah are in a position to regard the increased federal budget and augmented force of federal employees, of which Mr. Bryan complains with equanimity. On the other hand, it is embarrassing for some newspapers and spellbinders in the First district. For instance, it may be difficult for them at one and the same time to commend Congressman Ollie James for supporting these expenditures and Mr. Bryan for condemning them; but as for us, we have no such conflict of sentiment. We uphold Ollie James in it; because Paducah has received her share, and realizing the moderation of the local demands, we assume that the same moderation was manifested in other expenditures.

Considering the size of this community and what the added facilities and improvements will cost, we can easily appreciate the millions and millions necessary to make up the total for all places. A large part of that money went for postoffice expenses, and most of that will be returned in revenue from the postoffice department. A large part went for Philippine expenses and all of it will be returned through the Philippine tariff. Millions and millions went for the expense of digging the Panama canal; other millions went in the furtherance of federal legal proceedings against trusts and railroad investigations, irrigation of public lands; river improvements and the increased pay of soldiers and sailors, and the trip of the fleet around the world.

We have confidence in Mr. Roosevelt and believe that every penny he asked from congress was justified. In fact, we know that congressmen demurred at the budget, fearing the amount would be made campaign capital; but public opinion was behind the executive and the money was appropriated. Such courage compares very favorably, we think, with the action of the last state administration in withholding school teachers' pay several months and declining to issue other warrants until just before it relinquished the state offices, thus showing a balance of cash in the treasury of more than a million, and allowing the incoming administration to be swamped with a deluge of old warrants that emptied the state treasury, and embarrassed with nearly a million of reckless appropriations and the necessity of paying teachers again without money.

There isn't much danger of any legislative body spending more money than is actually necessary just before an election, and the people of the United States are well pleased with the objects of recent appropriations.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

Pursuing that same line of thought suggested in our editorial yesterday on labor, we would add a word of warning against a natural tendency when men's minds and hearts have been fixed upon the accomplishment of one definite purpose—a tendency to consider themselves set apart from the rest of the world, a tendency to consider that their circumscribed community of interest extends to every question that may affect the members of the organization in any way.

A labor union does not set its members apart from the rest of the world more than a grocers' association sets them apart; a medical society or a bar association sets its members apart from the rest of the world.

So far as their craft or trade or profession, or business is concerned, and outsiders are not affected to their hurt or benefit, there is an exclusive community of interest among the members of that particular organization. But as human beings, creatures of the same God, and citizens of this common country, the members of a trades union, a bar association or a medical society stand on an equal footing with every other man. The governmental policies they should advocate are the policies that apply to all men alike and that benefit the whole country. We cannot get away from the fact that we are all members of a common country, heirs of a common heritage, children of the same heroic ancestors. There are laws that apply to the condition of laboring men, regulating hours, child labor, safety appliances, and responsibility for injuries, that most directly affect the man who works with his hands, but which in the end benefit all men and afford opportunity for the advancement of the race. These and others of similar import are laws that benefit all the people. The justice of them is easily understood, and popular support is merely a matter of publicity.

But this matter of common benefit must be the criterion for all laws. There will be demagogues, who will say, "We have an organized political power here if we just use it. Let us secure laws that will give us an undue advantage; that will differentiate us from all other men in the country." Then will commence an era of class struggle, the success of the class in which, will hamstring the industrial progress of the country and in the end crush the man first affected by prosperity or the reverse—the man who produces the wealth with his hands. No man can assume that the condition of the rest of the country will continue just the same, while he secures some exclusive personal advantage.

It is still true that "Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor, and could not have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital and deserves higher consideration."

(Abraham Lincoln said that, and he did not steal it from William Jennings Bryan.)

But in the complexities of our social organization, it must not be taken too literally. Remember the free soup house under the Cleveland administration. There was a case in point—capital was prostrated; but labor had a hard time living in the cities. The truth is capital and labor are interdependent nowadays. We are not living the simple life of original man, and experience has taught us that laws which benefit capital also benefit labor, and laws which really benefit labor, benefit capital. Sometimes the laborer thinks the strictures of the courts too severe; sometimes the capitalist thinks the laws for the amelioration of the condition of his employees too drastic, but in the end both must realize, when they come to adjust themselves to the situation, that everything was for the greatest good to the greatest number.

Geographical.

Little things frequently illustrate the English view of American geography very picturesquely. An Englishman had taken the Pacific express at Philadelphia, and, feeling tired, had retired to his berth. Just before he fell asleep he happened to remember that he had forgotten something, so he put his head out between the curtains and called:

"Portah; portah!"
 The porter came.
 "What is it, sir?" he said.
 "Please, wake me up when we get to San Francisco, you know." Philadelphia Ledger.

Chapter XVII.

A GENTLEMAN IN HIDING.

MRS. CLAIBORNE excused herself shortly, and Shirley, her father and the ambassador talked to the accompaniment of the shower that drove in great sheets against the house. Shirley was wholly uncomfortable over the urn of affairs. The ambassador would not leave until the storm abated, and meanwhile Armitage must remain where he was. If by any chance he should be discovered in the house, no ordinary excuse would explain away his presence, and as she pondered the matter it was Armitage's plight, his injuries and the dangers that beset him, that was uppermost in her mind. The embarrassment that lay in the air for herself if Armitage should be found concealed in the house troubled her little. Her heart beat wildly as she realized this, and the look in his eyes and the quick pain that twitched his lip at the door haunted her.

The two men were talking of the new order of things in Vienna.

"The trouble is," said the ambassador, "that Austria-Hungary is not a nation, but what Metternich called only a geographical expression. Where there are so many loose ends a strong rasp is necessary to hold them together."

"And a weak hand," suggested Judge Claiborne, "might easily lose or scatter them."

"Precisely. And a man of character and spirit could topple down the card-house tomorrow, pick out what he liked and create for himself a new edifice—a stronger one. I speak frankly, an Emperor is out of the way, the new emperor-king is a weakling, and if he should die tonight or tomorrow—"

The ambassador lifted his hands and snapped his fingers.

"Yes. After him, what?"
 "After him his scoundrelly cousin Francis, and then a stronger than Von Stroebel might easily fall to hold the fragments of the empire together."

"But there are shadows on the screen," remarked Judge Claiborne. "There was Karl, the mad prince."
 "Humph! There was some red blood in him, but he was impossible. He had a taint of democracy, treason, rebellion."

Judge Claiborne laughed.

"I don't like the combination of terms. If treason and rebellion are synonyms of democracy, we Americans are in danger."

"No; you are a miracle—that is the only explanation," replied Marhof.
 "But a man like Karl—what if he were to reappear in the world! A little democracy might solve your problem."

"No, thank God, he is out of the way! He was sane enough to take himself off and die."

"But his ghost walks. Not a year ago we heard of him, and he had a son who chose his father's exile. What if Charles Louis, who is without heirs, should die and Karl or his son—"

"In the providence of God they are dead. Impostors gain a little brief notoriety by pretending to be the lost Karl or his son Frederick Augustus, but Von Stroebel satisfied himself that Karl was dead. I am quite sure of it. You know dear Stroebel had a genius for gaining information."

"I have heard as much," and Shirley and the baron smiled at Judge Claiborne's tone.

The storm was diminishing, and Shirley grew more tranquil. Soon the ambassador would leave and she would send Armitage away, but the mention of Stroebel's name rang oddly in her ears, and the curious way in which Armitage and Chauvenet had come into her life awoke new and anxious questions.

"Count von Stroebel was not a democrat, at any rate," she said. "He believed in the divine right and all that."
 "So do I, Miss Claiborne. It's all we've got to stand on."

"But suppose a democratic prince were to fall heir to one of the European thrones, insist on giving his crown to the poor and taking his oath in a frock coat, upsetting the old order entirely?"

"He would be a fool, and the people would drag him to the block in a week," declared the baron vigorously.

They pursued the subject in lighter vein a few minutes longer; then the baron rose. Judge Claiborne summoned the waiting carriage from the stable, and the baron drove home.

"I ought to work for an hour on that Danish claims matter," remarked the judge, glancing toward his curtained den.

"You will do nothing of the kind. Night work is not permitted in the valley."

"Thank you. I hoped you would say that, Shirley. I believe I am tired, and now if you will find a magazine for me I'll go to bed. Ring for Thomas to close the house."

"I have a few notes to write. They'll take only a minute, and I'll write them here."

She heard her father's door close, listened to be quite sure that the house was quiet and threw back the curtains. Armitage stepped out into the library.

 "You must go! You must go!" she whispered, with deep intensity.
 "Yes; I must go. You have been kind. You are most generous."
 But she went before him to the hall, waited, listened, for one instant; then threw open the outer door and bade him go. The rain dripped heavily from the eaves, and the cool breath of the freshened air was sweet and stimulating. She was immediately relieved to have him out of the house, but he lingered on the veranda, staring helplessly about.

"I shall go home," he said, but so unsteadily that she looked at him quickly. He carried the cloak flung over his shoulder and in readjusting it dropped it to the floor, and she saw in the light of the door lamps that his arm hung limp at his side and the gray cloth of his sleeve was heavy and dark with blood. With a quick gesture she stooped and picked up the cloak.

"Come, come! This is all very dreadful. You must go to a physician at once."

"My man and horse are waiting for me. The injury is nothing." But she threw the cloak over his shoulders and led the way across the veranda and out upon the walk.

"I do not need the doctor; not now. My man will care for me."

He started through the dark toward the outer wall, as though confused, and she went before him toward the side entrance. He was aware of her quick light step, of the soft rustle of her skirts, of a wish to send her back, which his tongue could not voice, but he knew that it was sweet to follow her leading. At the gate he took his bearings with a new assurance and strength.

"It seems that I always appear to you in some miserable fashion. It is preposterous for me to ask forgiveness. To thank you—"

"Please say nothing at all, but go. Your enemies must not find you here again. You must leave the valley."

"I have a work to do. But it must not touch your life. Your happiness is too much, too sweet to me."

"You must leave the bungalow. I found out today where you are staying. There is a new danger there. The mountain people think you are a revenue officer. I told one of them—"

"Yes?"

"—that you are not. That is enough. Now hurry away. You must find your horse and go."

He bent and kissed her hand.

"You trust me. That is the dearest thing in the world." His voice faltered and broke in a sob, for he was worn and weak, and the mystery of the night and the dark, silent garden wove a spell upon him, and his heart leaped at the touch of his lips upon her fingers. Their figures were only blurs in the dark, and their low tones died instantly, muffled by the night. She opened the gate as he began to promise not to appear before her again in any way to bring her trouble, but her low whisper arrested him.

"Do not let them hurt you again," she said.

"Do not let them hurt you again," she said, and he felt her hand seek his, felt its cool, furtive pressure for a moment, and then she was gone. He heard the house door close a moment later and, gazing across the garden, saw the lights on the veranda flash out. Then, with a smile on his face, he strode away to find Oscar and the horses.

Considerate Justice.

Some of the West Indian Islanders have learned that when a foreigner misbehaves himself on their shores it is better to suffer in silence than to mete out punishment at the risk of a visit from a gunboat from the miscreant's native land. A judge in Hayti recently took occasion to pay off old scores to redeem his self-respect in the case of an offender brought before him. To his first question, as to the nationality of the accused, the interpreter answered that the prisoner was from Switzerland.

"Switzerland!" said the judge. "That country has no seacoast, has it?"

"No, your honor," replied the interpreter.

"And no navy?"

"And no navy, your honor."

"Very well, then," said the judge, "give him a year's hard labor."

GOOD ROADS WILL BE RESULT OF POST-OFFICE DEPT. ORDER

Washington, Sept. 8. (Special)—The suggestion given by the Post-office department that it cannot maintain rural free delivery routes over roads which are not in a passable condition, cannot help but give a stimulus to road construction, and increase the interest in road building throughout the country.

Prof. W. M. Hays, assistant secretary of agriculture, who is an enthusiastic advocate of good roads, and an authority on agricultural subjects, sees in the notice issued by the postoffice department a step toward a comprehensive system of road building by county and state authorities co-related to the work now going on under the direction of the department of agriculture, and its division of good roads.

It has come to be well accepted that a larger treatment of the waterways of the country, on a more comprehensive scale, for which the National Rivers and Harbors congress stands, means better roads, and therefore a blessing to the farmers. Increased value for his farm and easier movement for his wagons. With a comprehensive plan of dealing with the water highways of the nation on the part of the general government the building of roads would be made much easier than now, for it would be possible to transport metallurgical material for roads far distances by water, which under existing conditions is impossible.

If the lakes-to-the-gulf project of increasing the depth of the Mississippi is accomplished it would be possible to transport the refuse from the ore mines of the Duluth Superior region to the lower Mississippi and use this extremely hard material for road building in half a dozen states bordering on the Father of Waters.

Trap rock, which is the toughest kind of hard rock, used loosely to designate various dark-colored igneous rocks, wears well as road material, and with improved waterways to insure transportation its use would be an accomplished fact.

Rock from the Adirondacks has also been used for road building, especially in New York and portions of New England, but with an inland waterway from New York to Florida its use upon the roads of the south would insure results at present but little appreciated, and make possible the desire of the postmaster general to have, in the United States, a system of roads the equal of those in France, Brittany and rural England. It is remarkable how closely the nation's waterways are related to worse again.

the material welfare of the people, affecting in a minor degree both steam and electric railway transportation, solving the bulkier freight problems by making the rivers and streams respond to the uses of navigation.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the traffic moved by railroads in the United States exceeds four and one-half million tons every 24 hours, and that the railroad traffic of the country has doubled in the last seven years while the facilities for transporting it have increased less than 25 per cent. Should the next seven years prove as productive and as faithful of large returns as the last seven years, that traffic, in the very nature of things, ought to double again and then arises this question, how is it to be carried?

Unless it can be carried there will be little or no inducement to increase its volume, and without the physical ability to transport the output of the farm, mine and factory production will necessarily suffer. With the railroads unable to meet the demands of the great producing forces of the country, for the carriage of their products, the waterways of the nation, through its rivers, streams and canals, will be called upon to bear its proportion of the transportation and a comprehensive system of waterway development, as urged by the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, becomes imperative.

Excellent Musical Program.

An excellent musical program has been arranged for this evening for the concert that will be given at the Auditorium ring for the benefit of the Woman's club and Prof. Harry Gilbert. Mr. Ralph Wyllie, a violinist of note, comes with flattering McDees.

Those who take part are: Mr. Ralph Wyllie, violin; Mr. Carl Smith, cello; Miss Mayme Dreyfuss, contralto; Mr. Harry Gilbert, piano. Following is the program:

THE FIGURE.

How Too Much Fat May Be Safely Reduced at Home.

"Oh, that this too, too solid flesh would melt!" cry the ladies nowadays as they try to squirm into a princess frock. How much would the too generously proportioned dame not give up for four inches less in the waistline as she compares herself with the more fortunate one hundred and twenty-five pound sister. Various devices are suggested to arrest the flesh producing tendency and keep the figure trim, including exercising, walking and dieting as well as numerous patent remedies, but there are objections to all of these. Exercising is hard work and takes up precious time; dieting is distasteful and a real punishment, and most of the patent remedies are dangerous to the health.

The very best thing for the overweight, whether male or female, is a simple home receipt: 1/2 oz. Marmola, 1/2 oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3 1/2 oz. Peppermint Water, which can be obtained of any druggist at small cost. This should be taken a teaspoonful at a time after meals and at bedtime, and results will be both speedy and certain. This is a harmless mixture that cannot bring on any stomach troubles nor cause the dried-up wrinkled appearance of those who starve or take "patent reducers" to get thin. On the contrary, although it often takes the fat off at the rate of a pound a day, it is really very beneficial to the system, cleansing the blood and causing the complexion to become fair and beautiful. The cost of the three ingredients is a mere bagatelle and one may, if they prefer, get them separately and mix them together at home.

Mrs. Frank Gilliam, of Mayfield, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. P. Scott, 439 South Fifth street.

CURE FOR SUMMER COMPLAINT

At no time of the year are the bowels put to a severer test than during the hot weather. Thousands become afflicted with "summer complaint," or running of the bowels. The cause very often lies in the drinking of impure water, the eating of unripe fruit or tainted food. But whatever the cause it is useless to try to cure the trouble with an astringent remedy, an opiate, or salts and such things. The bowels need not only a thorough cleansing out, but the stomach needs strengthening and toning, so that they may have a new start. All this is best obtained by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a great stomach, liver and bowel cleanser. It will quickly stop the unnatural passages, which are so weakening and give rise to vertigo. Thousands of families are using it steadily and thereby avoid all digestive troubles summer and winter. Buy a 50 cent or $1.00 bottle today of your druggist and you will be surprised at the quick and lasting effects. You will find it a mild, gentle laxative, agreeable to young and old, and absolutely guaranteed to give you relief. You will also find it a money saver, for it will enable you to cure yourself at home. Those who have never tried it and wish to do so before buying a bottle, can obtain a SAMPLE FOR A TEST FREE. WOMEN OF PARAGUAY.

Patient and Good Natured—Dress in White, Go Bare-footed.

Paraguay is rich in local color. The picturesque character of the native population with their quaint Indian features and habits of everyday life are interesting to anybody fond of observing strange phases of human life. By nature these people are patient and gentle, seldom complaining, chattering and laughing from sunrise to sunset and taking small thought of what the morrow may have in store for them.

It is hard to imagine how Lopez could have drilled them into fighting material of strength to keep in check the combined forces of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay for five long years, and it speaks volumes for the indomitable energy of the man that he was able to sustain his position for so protracted a time.

Clothing is very much of a superfluity in Paraguay. The attire of the women is a cotton chemise with long sleeves, a headscarf or manta, passed over the head and around the body in Moorish fashion. The dress of the men is equally simple, consisting only of cotton shirt and trousers. Both sexes are guileless of foot covering. At times an almost uncanny feeling rises when a group of these white-robed, dark-haired maidens pass suddenly with the silent tread of unshod feet.

Of a morning in the market places the women folk flock to sell their wares, carrying on their heads the baskets containing a few cents' worth of native produce they have been able to gather together for disposal in the towns. The soft Guarani language, the common tongue of the Paraguayans, adds further charm to the scene.—Boston Transcript.

If people would only work as hard as they worry they wouldn't have any time to worry.

S.S.S. MAKES A LASTING CURE

There are certain mineral medicines which will remove the external symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and shut the disease up in the system for awhile, but when the treatment is left off the disease will surely return. Then the loathsome symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper-colored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc., are usually worse because the disease has made rapid progress on the internal members, and weakened the constitution and general health of the sufferer. S. S. S. is the only remedy that can be used with perfect safety in the treatment of Contagious Blood Poison, and with the assurance that a lasting cure will result. This medicine, made entirely of roots and herbs of recognized curative and tonic value, antitoxins and destroys the powerful virus of the disease, and by purifying the blood of every particle of the poison and enriching and strengthening the circulation, removes every symptom of the trouble. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up the disease in any way, but drives it entirely out from the blood, leaving not the slightest trace for future outbreaks. ALL CASH WHEAT CHICAGO REPORT

Says is in Control of the Armour People.

Congestion, Due to Heavy Purchases, Acute—All the Elements of a Natural Corner.

GENERAL SITUATION BULLISH

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Various developments that tended to send wheat prices booming appeared last week, and as a result September made a net gain of 3 1/2 c. December 3 1/4 c. and May 3 1/4 c. Wheat started its ascent Tuesday morning, when the shorts in September were the victims of a gentle but firm application of the "squeeze process," administered by the Armour people, who are said to control the cash wheat.

A few of the best-posted brokers advanced the opinion that the Armour house was taking advantage of the small supply of contract wheat in this market to engineer a deal that may prove distressing to the shorts. Deliveries on September contracts were only 525,000 bushels. The wheat was put out by several leading houses, and some of it changed hands many times. It was the popular impression that Armour would secure control of the bulk of it eventually.

The congestion in September wheat, due to the heavy purchase by the Armour interest, became acute and an excited movement on the part of the shorts, who had become frightened, sent the price up in a lively manner. The reluctance of a good many shorts to believe that an attempt would be made to engineer a "squeeze" at the height of the crop-moving period, made it all the more possible to carry out that program.

A Natural Corner.

September wheat is in a very peculiar position, possessing all the elements of a natural corner at the end of the month. Quite a number of wealthy men hold the aggregate line that is several times larger than the present local stock. If these stand for delivery and the elevator owners continue their apparent present policy of hanging onto their property, it certainly would put shorts in a bad box at the end of the month. The strength of the September position lies in the fact that cash wheat prices, and particularly hard winter, are higher at other centers than in Chicago, and could not be made profitably available for delivery on September contracts here. The delivery of spring wheat is entirely out of the question, as it would mean a loss of about 10c per bushel.

In a general way the trade during the past week was dull, owing to the lack of incentive to speculative activity in the situation, as it is viewed by the outsiders. Some of the brokers claimed that outside orders were more in evidence, but others said they had failed to detect any increase in business.

The announcement that the Minneapolis and Duluth exchanges had decided that velvet chaff wheat must be carried in a separate grade and cannot be applied on contracts, excited general comment as there is a good deal of that kind of grain in the Northwest this season, apparently, and the action taken means that contract supplies will be cut down materially. The throwing out of velvet chaff wheat had a firming influence on the market.

Ideal Threshing Weather.

The weather in the Northwest has been ideal for threshing and moving crops at Minneapolis and Duluth. Minneapolis and Duluth were large enough to afford millers ample opportunity to supply their wants. The millers are pleased with the quality of the new wheat and are buying it freely. It is not only dry and in good milling condition, but possesses exceptional strength, making an excellent flour. It is estimated that about 300,000 barrels of flour this week and the interior millers are grinding energetically. A good export demand for patents is stimulating the millers to activity and although the movement of wheat is liberal it is not burdensome. Local and southwestern mills also are active, having done their full share of business in the last few days.

Flour For Export.

Large sales of flour for export at Minneapolis Thursday provided a stimulus to bullish activity. It was reported that 100,000 barrels had been sold to Baltic ports and 30,000 barrels to Scotland. Toledo also reported sales of 13,000 barrels. A brisk milling demand existed at Minneapolis in consequence and prices for both cash and futures in that market ruled strong.

The farmers in the Northwest were said to be marketing their wheat judiciously and thus deriving the full benefit of the high prices prevailing. In the Southwest the growers have adopted an unusually conservative policy, and it is reported that some of them imbued with the idea that prices are destined to go much higher, were endeavoring to cancel sales recently made. Local receipts Thursday were only fifty cars compared with 208 cars the corresponding day last year. A better export demand was reported, especially from the continent, but the advance in prices

FRANTIC WOMEN

Organic disturbances of the feminine system act like a firebrand on the nerves of women, often driving them fairly frantic.

A nervous, irritable woman is a source of misery not only to herself, but to all those who come under her influence. That such conditions can be entirely overcome by taking is proven by the following letters.

Mrs. Mary Wood, of Christiana, Tenn., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I had the worst form of female troubles and my nerves were all torn to pieces; sometimes I suffered so much that it seemed as though I could not live."

"I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I feel like a different person. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold, and I cannot say enough for your advice."

Mrs. Wallace Wilson, Thompsonville, Conn., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I was all run down, nervous, and could not rest nights. Doctors failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to perfect health."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

had the effect of throwing bids out of line.

The conditions underlying the market are regarded as extremely bullish in many quarters. Clement, Curtis & Co., outline the situation as follows:

This year the world's crops are below the food requirements, being the second year of such deficiency. Europe is more dependent upon our surplus this year than last, and supplies both at home and abroad are at the minimum of years; in fact, considering the population, they are the smallest since adequate crop statistics have been gathered. Europe will require 2,050,000,000 bushels for consumption and year-end supplies. Its crop will not exceed 1,550,000,000 bushels, and its known supplies are 50,000,000 bushels. Therefore it will require from the surplus countries 450,000,000 bushels.

The United States and Canada have a total available of 840,000,000 bushels, which leaves 190,000,000 bushels as the exportable quantity of both countries. India's partial crop failure removes it from the export field. Argentina and other countries, with the best of harvests this winter, cannot contribute over 150,000,000 bushels. There is then 340,000,000 bushels to fill a 450,000,000 demand.

The adjustment of such a situation comes through high prices limiting consumption. It follows that another sharp contraction in consumption can only be attained at a higher price level.

A man may have one foot in the grave and still do a lot of kicking with the other one.

FARMERS' UNION CANDIDATE WINS

Miss Rickman is Chosen Goddess of Labor.

Labor Day Celebration at Maxon Mills Attracts Large Crowd From Paducah.

TWO GOOD BASEBALL GAMES.

The Labor Day celebration and picnic at Maxon Mills yesterday passed off pleasantly and profitably, a crowd of 10,000 or 12,000 people being present. Speeches were made by Hon. J. S. Ross, J. Will Graham, Populist nominee for congress, and J. E. Merrick, of Louisville, national committeeman of the Independence party for Kentucky.

All the trades unions of Paducah, excepting the bricklayers, who held a celebration at Wallace park, were represented and the Farmers' union was largely represented, members from Ballard and McCracken counties being present and taking part in the big parade.

Goddess of Labor.

The contest for Goddess of Labor was won by Miss Rickman, who represented the Farmers' Union. Miss Louise Detzel, candidate of the Painters and Decorators, received 3,563 votes, and Miss Maple Trotter, candidate of the Leatherworkers, received 639 votes although she had announced her withdrawal, not wishing to divide the trades union vote.

In the athletic contests William Fewish won the bean man's race and Richard Calles the fat man's race. George Hannin, president of the Central Labor Union, won the free for all, and Miss Hannin won the young ladies' race. The Culley baseball team defeated the La Center team in a fast game, the score being 7 to 4.

At the Wallace park celebration, the feature of the day was the baseball game between the Chess, Checker and Whist club team and the Knights of Columbus. The C. C. and W. team won by the score of 8 to 5.

The colored hand carriers held their celebration at Rowlandtown park. They gave a creditable parade in the forenoon.

Kodak will, in a very short time, enable the stomach to do the work it should do, and the work it should do is to digest all the food you eat. It makes the stomach sweet and it is pleasant to take. It is sold here by all druggists.

Astronomical Distances.

In connection with the study of astronomy, it is difficult to realize the meaning of millions of miles, but some idea may be gathered from the time that would be taken by an express train, or the shot from a cannon, to cover celestial spaces.

The distance of the earth from the sun is about 92,000,000 miles, and light traveling at the rate of 186,700 miles per second in vacuum, traverses this distance in 8 1/4 minutes; but a railway train, going at a speed of 60 miles per hour, would take 175 years to reach the sun. The circumference of the earth forming the orbit of the earth round the sun is about 577,760,000 miles in length, and the earth covers this distance in 365 1/4 days traveling at the rate of 65,910 miles an hour or 1,098 miles per minute, or nearly 1,100 times as fast as a train going at one mile per minute. Therefore, a train traveling at this speed would require nearly 2,100 years to accomplish the journey round the earth's orbit.

The velocity of a rifle bullet is about 2,120 feet per second, or 24.2 miles per minute, and that of a projectile weighing 320 pounds from a quick-firing nine-inch gun, is about 3,000 feet per second, or 34 miles per minute, so that the velocity of the earth is 32.3 times as fast as the latter.—English Mechanics.

The assessor shall constantly keep on hand, and furnish to persons lawfully requiring the same, all necessary blanks and forms for the lists and statements required by this act. Nothing herein shall, however, prevent the assessor from assessing from the best information he can gather, and where an assessment has been made against a person who has had actual notice to appear and list his property or make statements thereof and fails to do so, the same shall not be decreased, but may be increased by board of equalization. If any person refuse to attend when summoned, or to be sworn to answer, or to answer any question propounded to him by the assessor or his deputy, the assessor or deputy may, in writing, under oath, state the question, the refusal to answer it, and ask the police judge to issue a warrant against such person; and if the question appear to be a proper one, the said judge shall issue a warrant, and the said person shall, on conviction of having refused to answer the question, it being found by the court to be a proper one, be fined ten dollars, and there compelled by proceeds of contempt to answer the question, and such proper questions as the assessor may propound to him. The assessor shall assess personal property in a separate book, in which he shall separate tangible from intangible property. The word person as used herein shall mean natural and artificial persons, and the duties enjoined on them shall in the case of artificial persons, be performed by the chief officer or agent in the city at the time. Whenever the assessor shall ascertain that there has in any former year or years, been any property omitted which should have been taxed, he shall assess the same against the person who should have been assessed with it, if living, if not, against his representatives. (See sec. 2984a, which provides for assessment of franchises.)

All persons owning property of any kind, real or personal, in the City of Paducah, are required to come to the Assessor's office at the City Hall and sign their property lists for assessments, which are now ready for 1909.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology Has Proved That Dandruff Is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality, causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich., R. W. Walker Co., Special Agents.

DANGER LURKS IN BANK DEPOSIT LAW

Comptroller Points Out Weakness of Bryan's Demands.

By Encouraging Hazardous Banking It Would Increase Failure.

IS NOT A POLITICAL ISSUE.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The guarantee of bank deposits is in no sense a political question in the opinion of Thomas P. Kane, acting comptroller of the currency, who has occupied the position of deputy comptroller for many years, and is competent to treat the subject in an expert manner, which he has done upon request. William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the presidency, and others are injecting the subject into the present campaign as an issue, but Mr. Kane, in an able and extended review of the subject, shows how it is far more than that—in fact, that it is an economic problem which cannot be solved correctly by party politics. Mr. Kane's observations, written after much careful thought and study, expose the fallacy of the Oklahoma guaranty law. He says: "The opinion recently rendered by the attorney general of the United States, to the effect that it is unlawful for any National Banking association to enter into such an agreement as is contemplated by the Oklahoma deposit guaranty law, disposes of the question so far as the legal right of national banks under existing laws to make a contract of this nature is concerned. Economic, Not a Political Problem. This opinion, however, does not deal with nor settle the basic principle involved in this latest monetary problem which has been suddenly injected into our complex banking system, and into state and national politics. The question is in no sense a political one, in the common application of that term, and cannot be correctly solved by party politics. It is an economic problem which appeals strongly to a considerable number of our people, as well as to some well-known students of finance, and is attracting enough attention to call for thoughtful consideration and intelligent discussion by experienced bankers and financial scientists. The principle itself is believed by the writer to be ethically and fundamentally unsound, but its baneful tendencies should be demonstrated by impartial and logical reasoning, devoid of selfish considerations, and not by passionate political strife. This movement did not originate with the bank depositor. It is the natural sequence of a keen and more or less selfish competition for business between the banks in the newly settled and rapidly developing sections of our country, and has been seized upon by the politicians as a popular tenet with which to secure for their party candidates the votes of the unwary and unthinking. Unless its fallacy is intelligently exposed it is likely to extend to other sections of the country. The most persistent advocates of this modern financial heresy among the banking fraternity will be found in those sections of the country where liberal or excessive rates of interest are offered by banks as an inducement to secure deposits and high rates of interest are offered by banks as an inducement to secure deposits and high rates are charged for loans. Encourages Speculative Banking. The legal rate of interest in the state of Oklahoma is 7 per cent. The contract rate is 12 per cent. Next to Texas, Oklahoma leads the states of the Union in the number of national banks of the small-capital class that have been chartered since the passage of the act of congress of March 14, 1900, providing for banks with a minimum capital of $25,000. There are in Oklahoma at this writing 307 national banks, 217 of which have a capital each of less than $50,000. Competition among this class of banks is keen. A large number of these banks pay 6 per cent on deposit and receive 12 per cent per annum on some loans and from 2 to 5 per cent per month on others. The payment of liberal or excessive rates of interest as an inducement to secure deposits attract funds to a bank which would not otherwise be received. The neutral tendency of such a policy, is toward injudiciousness and speculative banking. Because, in order to find profitable employment for such deposits at a higher rate of interest than that paid, the bank is compelled to seek investments for such funds in loans or securities of a more or less speculative or hazardous character. Such a policy makes a depositor's guaranty law very essential to a bank of this class as a means of maintaining itself in the community in competition with the conservatively managed institution which pays no interest on deposits subject to withdrawal on demand, but relies principally upon the reputation which a safe and conservative management inspires to secure its proportionate share of the banking business of the locality. Depositors who have any regard for the safe of their funds should consider well the relative strength and security of the institution which offers as an inducement for deposits a liberal or excessive rate of interest, and the one which pays no interest on active accounts, or a moderate rate only on certain lines of deposits.

How Law Would Operate But the depositors' guaranty scheme offers no premium for experience, prudence and conservatism. It holds the careful and reputable banker responsible for his proportionate share of the deposit liabilities of his injudicious or speculative neighbor, when disaster overtakes the hazardous ventures of the latter. The logical effect of such a system as the Oklahoma guaranty law is to sponsor for the weak, the conservatively managed for the speculative, require the strong bank to stand still, and, in the long run, an important factor to be considered in the banking business, is eliminated entirely, and, so far as the depositor is concerned, inexperience, incompetency and recklessness count for as much as conservatism and reputation. The relative strength and stability of a bank would not concern the average depositor. He would regard his fund as safe in the wildest bank as in the sound and safely managed institution, because banks of the latter class, under a compulsory guaranty law, would be responsible to the extent of their unknown liability for any deficiency in assets in excess of the deposit liabilities of the former concern. In addition thereto the self-reliant banks would suffer the loss of business diverted by the speculative and incompetently managed institution, which it would not have obtained but for the confidence inspired by the security of the guaranty.

Not a Function of Government. It is not the function of the government, state or national, to guaranty deposits in the banks any more than it is to insure the business ventures of the individuals, company or corporation in any other investment or risk. Neither is it the legitimate function of banks to insure or guaranty the deposits of each other. It is claimed by some of the advocates of this policy that because of the state and national governments exact of banks security for public funds that the depositor should be likewise secured. An individual has the same right as the government to require security for his deposit, but neither the government nor the depositor has any right to require one bank to guaranty a deposit in another bank. A bank may lawfully and legitimately guarantee its own obligations, but it has no moral right from an economic point of view to guarantee the obligations of another party, bank or individual. Such a policy, based as it would be upon a false premise, must eventually fail because of its inherent weakness. On July 28, 1908, the date of the attorney general's opinion on the guaranty law, there were 307 national banks in operation in the state of Oklahoma. On August 8 the comptroller of the currency notified all of these banks that it was held to be lawful for any national bank to avail itself of the privileges of the guaranty law, and required such as had entered into a contract of that nature with the state banking board to withdraw therefrom. Only 57 of these banks were found to have made contract agreements, and of this number 39 have informed the comptroller of the currency that they have withdrawn or would notify the state banking board of their intention and desire to do so, and the remaining 16 have the matter under advisement. Thus far only 2 have actually gone into liquidation for the purpose of reorganizing under the state banking system. Two hundred and fifty of the national banks in the state have not availed themselves of the privileges of the guaranty law, and a large number reported that it was not their purpose to do so, as they were not in sympathy with the movement. Some of the 57 banks that made guaranty contracts declared that they were compelled to enter into the agreement because their neighboring banks had done so, and was advertising the fact as a means of attracting additional business. The annual average of individual deposits in the active national banks during the forty-three years' existence of the national banking system ending with 1907, was $1,529,359,311. The average annual loss to creditors of such of the insolvent banks as have been finally liquidated amounted to $771,705, or one-twentieth of 1 per cent of the average annual deposits in active national associations. Would Increase Bank Failures. This very creditable showing speaks well for the security, popularity and successful operation of the national banking system. Instead, therefore, of entering upon such a questionable and experimental scheme as the guaranteeing of deposits by the government, or by the banks for each other, the national banking laws should be amended otherwise to increase the security of the creditors of the banks, and reduce to a minimum this already small percentage of loss to depositors. A bank failure is demoralizing in any community, no matter how small the percentage of loss may be to the depositors. A guaranty of deposits scheme would undoubtedly increase rather than diminish the number of bank failures, because of the hazardous banking and speculative ventures which such a system would engender and encourage through the augmentation of deposits resulting from the reliance of depositors upon the guaranty fund to insure them against loss, and their consequent indifference as to the reputation of the bank in which they placed their money. The number of failures would increase, but the burden of loss would be shifted from the depositor to the stockholder, whose profits would be used toward maintaining or making good any deficiency in the guaranty fund. The stockholder is as much entitled to governmental protection in his investment as the depositor. The one places his money in the bank for the interest he may receive therefor, or for convenience of exchange in his business transactions. The other invests his money in the stock for the profit he may derive therefrom. The capital stock of banks is very largely distributed among people of limited means. Why discriminate between the depositor and the stockholder? Monetary Commission at Work. Congress at its last session recognized the necessity for some amendments to our currency and banking laws which would not only improve our currency system, but would increase the security of deposits in national banks and a national monetary commission was authorized and appointed to investigate these subjects. In compliance with the request of this commission, the comptroller of the currency has carefully prepared and submitted to that body a number of recommendations which observation of the practical operation of the banking laws has shown to be necessary in the interest of the better security of the depositors in the banks.

Putting On Appearances. In a small country town, a tailor, with few customers, and consequently, a limited income, had a well-known habit of indulging in tall talk. On one occasion, after receipting a bill, he inquired if the gentleman would take a glass of his home-brewed ale. Upon receiving an answer in the affirmative, he shouted to the inmate of the kitchen to draw a jug of ale for the shop. After some little time the ale was brought, and as the servant, who was a new hand, placed the jug on the counter she said: "If you please, sir, you're not to have any more ale at the Cross Keys without the money. This is the second pot owing for." "At another time his little girl ran into the shop, calling her father to dinner. A gentleman being in the shop, Mr. H. said: "What is there for dinner, my child?" To which she replied, "Two red herrings." After the stranger's departure Mr. H. rebuked the child for exposing

KILLED BY TRAIN

WALLACE JONES, OF FLORENCE STATION, RUN OVER.

Went to Sleep on Railroad Track and Never Knew What Struck Him.

Florence Station, Sept. 8. (Special.)—Wallace Jones, a well known farmer of McCracken county, 46 years old, was killed Saturday night near Florence by a train. Jones had gone to sleep on the railroad track and the top of his head was cut off by the wheels. Jones had been in Paducah Saturday, but returned home, and had gone to a picnic. He intended walking home, and chose the railroad track. On his not arriving home his son started to look for him, and found his body Sunday morning. He leaves five children. The funeral was held Sunday with burial in Pleasant cemetery. Jones lived on the Gillen farm.

TOBACCO NEWS

Hopkinsville Tobacco. Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 8.—A somewhat stronger demand prevailed on this tobacco market last week, resulting in heavier sales than have been noted for some weeks. Even at this, the increase was not up to what had been hoped for. Still, it is taken as a hopeful indication, and the market has been buoyed up thereby, and it is believed that the demand will continue to show an increase.

The Planters' Protective association sold seventy-eight hogheads of tobacco at full schedule prices, and indications are good for heavier sales during the coming week.

The Society of Equity warehouse did not make a report, but their business also showed more activity.

Broker M. D. Bousie summarizes the business of the month as follows: The market has ruled quiet, with small sales, the supply being ample, but the demand light. The following prices are now in force:

Lugs—Low, $7.00 @ 7.25; common, $7.25 @ 7.50; medium, $8.00 @ 8.75; good, $8.75 @ 9.50.

Leaf—Low, $8.50 @ 9.00; common, $9.00 @ 10.00; medium, $10.00 @ 11.50; good, $11.50 @ 13.00.

Oggar wrappers, $11.00 @ 11.50; binders, $8.00 @ 10.00; fillers, $7.00 @ 8.50.

Receipts for the month, 43 hogheads; year, 6,585. Sales for the month, 150 hogheads; year, 2,968. The growing crop is now going into the barns rapidly, and is a clean, leafy crop, free from worm cut and will be very useful and the largest crop since 1903. The association controls virtually all the crop, and if they will allow the selling loose, it will sell readily at good prices, as many dealers prefer to do their own stemming and pricing.

The report of Auditor John D. Scates, of the Planters' Protective association, shows only fair sales at the ten markets in the dark tobacco district. This report, for week ending August 29, is as follows:

	Week.	Year.
Springfield, Tenn.	75	7,757
Cadiz, Ky.	65	730

"PISTOL TOTIN"

COSTS THREE $25 EACH AND JAIL SENTENCES.

Drew Them, As Usual, When Trouble Threatened At a Colored Dance.

On a charge of "totin'" pistols Boss Ivey, Will McKenzie, and Boss Diggs, all colored, were arrested Saturday night by Patrolmen Moore and Franklin at Seventh and Adams streets. They admitted their guilt and Judge Cross gave them $25 and costs with ten days in the county jail. The three went to a dance at the hall, and the pistols popped out from hip pockets when threatened trouble appeared. One shot was fired but it went wild, and the authorities did not investigate further.

What Shotgun Cost.

It costs more to carry a shotgun concealed than it does a pistol, according to the fine given Jesse Pea, colored, by Police Judge D. A. Cross. In his remarks Judge Cross said he considered them more dangerous, and according gave Pea a fine of $50 and costs and twenty days in the county jail, which is just twice the fine given three other negroes for "totin'" pistols.

Pea is a rouser, and was found Saturday night with a piece of lead, weighing a pound, and with a stout string tied to it. This rude sling was concealed in his pocket, and when Patrolman Franklin and Moore searched him they thought they had a real "stick-up" man. Pea explained the presence of the deadly lead by having just picked it up on the wharf and stuck it in his pocket. However he had been so considerate as to cut his own initials on the lead.

She was well known for her enthusiasm over photography and developed pictures for many amateurs. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3

Mrs. Sidney Forrest.

Mr. Albert Acree, of Twentieth and Jackson streets, received a message this morning announcing the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Sidney Forrest at Murray. Mrs. Forrest was about 75 years old and general debility was the cause of her death. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Acree, of Paducah, she leaves two sons: Dr. John and James Forrest, of Colletts county. She was one of the oldest citizens of Murray, and was highly respected. The burial was at Old Salem, near Murray.

That Was His Trouble.

The best man noticed that one of the wedding guests, a gloomy looking young man, did not seem to be enjoying himself. He was wandering about as though he had lost his last friend. The best man took it upon himself to cheer him up. "Er—have you kissed the bride?" he asked by way of introduction. "Not lately," replied the gloomy one with a far-away expression. "Everybody's Magazine."
